
Ash Jewels - The Best Way To Honour Dead People

Once a relative, friend or loved one disappears from our lives, the only way to honor it is to remember it in the best possible way. Knowing that, even though he is not with us, he sees us from somewhere or is still around in some way. Until not too long the most traditional way to keep the memory of that loved one were the funeral urns, keeping their ashes inside them.

But, nowadays, there is a more personal and close way of having our deceased close to us: the jewels for ashes or pendants to store hair. If they do not sound like anything or if you've heard about them and you're curious, you've come to the right place. In this article we will explain everything you need to know about them, their benefits and the different types that exist. Once you read the article, you will discover that there is no better way to honor those people you love so much and who are no longer there.

What are ash jewels?

Ash jewels are used to store ashes of the dead inside or for hair . They are pieces that you can take with you at all times, like any traditional jewel. In other words, they are jewels with ashes inside. They can be pendants in the form of cross, tear and other variants, for example. These jewels with ashes of the dead represent one of the best tributes you can give to those deceased people who gave you everything. Carrying a jewel of that beloved person with you has multiple benefits , above other classic systems such as the funeral urn. Let's see what they are.

Benefits provided by jewelry for ashes of the deceased Years ago cremation of deceased was rare. However, this trend is changing by leaps and bounds. Nowadays, there are more and more families that opt for the cremation of their loved ones . Even in life, many people express their desire for this option and leave in writing what they want their loved ones to do with the ashes. Some decide to keep the ashes of their deceased for the affection they have professed them. It may happen that the person who has died has been very important to you, one of the pillars of your life. If you have lost one of the referents of your life such as a father, a mother, a brother or sister, a grandparent or grandmother, your spouse, would not you like them to be always with you? This is where ash jewelry plays an essential role. These jewels will make you remember them more often, with more intensity and more affection .

Thanks to the jewels to keep ashes you will always carry close to your heart the person you loved so much. This will also comfort you and help you mitigate the pain your loss has caused . You will feel more peace and tranquility with the presence at your side of that loved one who was always with you in the good and the bad. Your constant presence will help you to give your best.

How are the ashes introduced inside the funeral jewels?

One of the most frequent doubts, before buying these jewels, is how the ash is introduced into them. We will tell you how to do it, since it is very easy. The manipulation of the ashes of our loved ones is something that usually gives us a lot of trouble. We are afraid to make some mistake and that because of that they spill. Some even consider this an offense and feel guilty.

It is clear that you have to be careful, but it does not require any special skills . Anyone can do it by following the tips that we detail below.

The jewel has a thread. This will be removed to add the ash. In addition, a small funnel is included in the jewel box, which will be placed in the hole left by the thread and the ash will be introduced through there. We recommend that you use a toothpick to help you push the ash inwards. Lean on a clean surface and make sure you have everything you need at hand before you begin to touch the ashes. When the ashes are inside the jewel you can close it. It is a very safe closure, so you can rest easy because the ashes will not come out even if the jewel falls .

Designs of jewelry for ashes

Another vital point when buying jewelry for ashes are the designs. You must choose the one that best suits the way of being a deceased person and your feelings towards her. It is also important that the jewel is pleasing to the eye and you feel comfortable wearing it.

Current and discrete designs (nobody knows they are for ashes)

Enter our store and you will discover a wide selection of funerary jewelery with a modern and elegant look. There are many designs to choose from. The most popular are pendants, bracelets and watches . Among all of them, the pendants are the type of jewel for ashes of the deceased that has more acceptance . This is because they present a wide variety of shapes, materials, colors and the special meaning of pendants.

We have previously commented that the purpose of wearing jewelry with ashes is to always feel the deceased loved one with us. With the pendants for ashes you also get to take your loved one closer to your heart. The variety of pendants for ashes is very wide, but without a doubt the most purchased are the designs in the shape of heart, the crosses and the oval shapes simulating a tear.