
Easter Meals Inspired by Cannabis

With Lent already well underway, people all over the United States and throughout the world might be working hard towards planning their Easter menu. Even adults will certainly be in on the fun since they can get a special basket on that joyous day. As a matter of fact, with the creator of Jelly Belly recently launching a new line of cannabis-infused jelly beans, you and your friends will certainly be in for a treat come Easter morning. Their newly debuted creations have definitely filled a gap in the market, with CBD beans becoming available in three varieties.

Many people celebrate this special occasion because they want to take part in commemorating Christ's resurrection. Other people who seldom observe religious traditions simply want to feel part of the community, especially when this is a day where they can come together as a family and celebrate with their loved ones.

If you have been observing Lent and have been taking the time to fast and steer clear from eating meat, or if you have simply taking a short break from using CBD oil, vaping, chocolate, and other indulgences, then you might be looking forward to Easter. After all, this means that you can finally go back to your old ways and revel in the comforts of your small luxuries. Holding a get together with your friends and family is one of the best ways you can do during this momentous occasion.

With numerous people coming over your place, preparing a wonderful spread you can all feast on together is essential. Below are some cannabis-inspired meals you can make not only on this day but also on other special days. If you are already in a bind, buying CBD oil you can infuse will certainly do the trick.

Starters:

Finger Food – Deviled Eggs

While the recipe may not sound appealing and apt for the occasion, know that there is nothing evil nor devilish about this starter. That is, not until after you have transformed this treat with the help of your reliable CBD oil. A few drops of your tincture or your oil once you are whipping up the yolks will make a world of difference.

Salad – Cranberry-Walnut Salad with Apple Cider and Cannabis-Infused Vinaigrette

For a refreshing start, you can start off your gathering by serving cranberry walnut salad. All you need are some greens of choice, apples, feta cheese, dried cranberries, and walnuts. The star of the show is the apple cider and cannabis vinaigrette mixture. While Cassidy Wolfe's recipe from Weedist calls for cannabis-infused extra virgin olive oil, you can simply buy CBD oil and mix a few drops into your store-bought olive oil. Add in some dried herbs and mustard and you're good to go.

Mains:

Cacio e Pepe Pasta

If you want an uncomplicated recipe that still allows you to taste CBD, taking a cacio e pepe pasta recipe is the way to go. Take a stick of butter, wait for it to melt, add a few drops of your CBD oil, and heat it up. Add to pasta and grate down your cheese and you are all set. It is literally that simple.

Rib Eye Steak with Garlic Herb Cannabutter

To pair nicely with your light yet filling pasta, opting for a heavier type of main which can last you for hours is essential. In fact, this is precisely what you should do for Easter, especially when you have tons of games and activities in mind later on.

While the recipe can be a mouthful, doing the whole thing will actually take you only a few minutes. Yes, the steak is still the star of the show, so season it only with a few cracks of salt and pepper before grilling it up. To accompany this, you can make your own cannabutter from scratch or simply buy from your store of choice. If you have CBD oil on hand, a few drops on butter will do. Add some dried herbs and your freshly whipped batch of cannabutter will be as gourmet as you can get.

Desserts:

Your Easter won't be complete without having Easter-themed cannabis desserts, right? Below are some traditional ideas which you can help bring to life using CBD products.

Cannabis Crème Easter Eggs

Easter eggs have long been a tradition of many. Throughout history, eggs have come to embody rebirth and new life, capturing the essence of spring and the resurrection of Jesus.

To make your own version of cannabis crème Easter eggs, having a stick of cannabutter on hand is essential. However, if you don't have one readily available, you can easily purchase CBD oil for sale online to replace cannabutter. Adding a few drops to your store-bought butter will be enough.

Mix this alongside the other ingredients and spoon the mixture into a ball. Coat this with melted chocolate and allow it to cool. You can make about 24 eggs from a single serving; adjust accordingly if you have fewer or more guests coming over. Friends and family will literally be in for a treat once they take a bite.

Triple Chocolate Brownies

Ever the party's favorite, triple chocolate brownies will certainly have anyone rolling their eyes out of deliciousness. Follow this recipe from Laurie Wolf of The Cannabist and you will feel like you're Martha Stewart in the kitchen.

Amp your recipe up by taking chocolate brownies to a whole new level. Top with your favorite ice cream flavor, whipped cream, nuts, raspberries, and blueberries. This creation will surely feel like fireworks in your mouth.

For those of you who will be conducting a game of Easter egg hunt around the house or outside the garden, hiding CBD gummies for the adults can be exciting. These vegan CBD gummies can bring a sense of fun and excitement, reminding everyone not just of the fun they had as a kid, but also the memories they can continue making as they grow up. Try your hand at these recipes and let these meals tide you with a sense of nostalgia.

eduzaurus.com